A flourishing career, at age 11

West Sac boy just likes to write novels

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Matthew Reade is a young novelist. A very young novelist.

"It's fun," explained Matthew Reade. "I'd say the best thing about writing is that you can do whatever you want. Your characters become your friends, almost. You have your own characters, your own story."

That kind of enjoyment has worked well for Matthew's writing career. The 11-year old has three novels under his belt, and he shows no sign of slowing down.

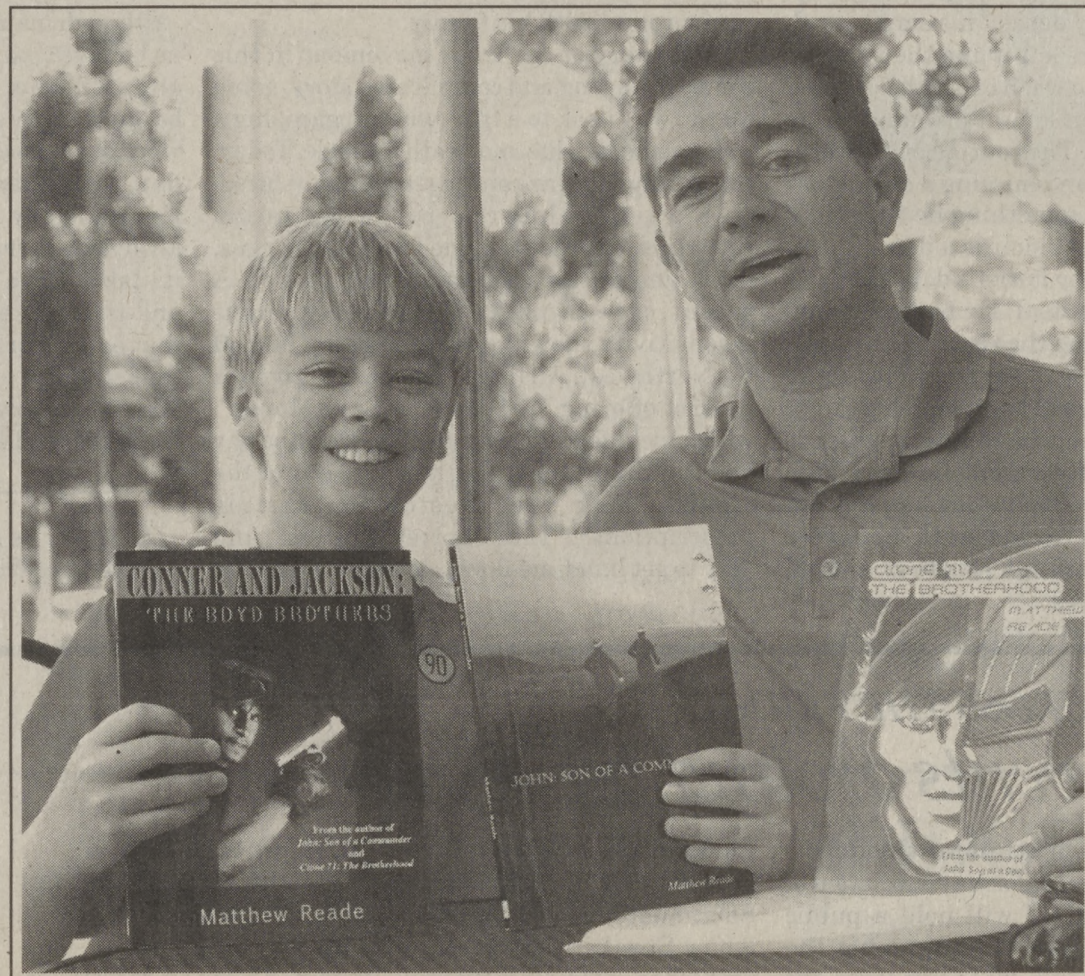

"I was inspired by Christopher Paolini — he was only 15 when he wrote his first book, 'Eragon.' I looked at that and said 'wow,' that's pretty interesting. I found that when writing, paragraphs become pages, pages become chapters, and chapters become novels."

Reade's first novel was "John: Son of a Commander," about a young man who becomes an advisor to Napoleon.

"I started it when I was maybe eight or nine," said Matthew. "I had the beginning in my head and the end in my head. I thought, 'I'm just going to put some stuff in the middle that delays the ending.' That was my idea of a book!"

When he finished writing "John: Son of a Commander," he started looking around for a way to publish it. Meanwhile, he kept writing — and now has three self-published novels out and available through such outlets as amazon.com. The other titles are "Clone 71: The Brotherhood" and "Conner and Jackson: The Boyd Brothers."

The books lean on adventure and science

MATTHEW READE, 11, and his dad, David. "He did it all," said his father. "He figured out on the Internet how to publish the books and found the cover artists. All I did was front the money -- and he paid me back!"

fiction themes. He's working on a sequel to the "clone" story, and has a new book will carry a military theme.

"I don't have a name for it yet, but it's kind of going to venture into military fiction," said Matthew. "It's going to be about Navy Seals, an elite fighting team. I have a stack of papers this high," he said, spreading a finger and thumb an inch apart, "about the locations for the book. There are all these cities in Russia. I like to 'Google Earth' a lot and look at the places I'm going to write about."

Google Earth is a program allowing the user to call up satellite photos showing most places on the planet.

How did Matthew put his writings into "book" form? Well, the process took about a year to figure out, he said.

"He did everything himself," reports his dad, David Reade. "He went on the Internet to find out how to self-publish. He found the cover artists. All I did was front the money, and he paid me back. Now, people can order the book and he makes a few bucks."

Each publishing project costs a few hundred dollars initially, the pair said.

Matthew has a thorough enjoyment of reading — and becoming an author has changed how he reads.

"Ever since I wrote my first book, I pay a lot of attention to how stories are put together," he commented. "I tend to over-explain things in my writing. I almost treat the readers like they're children."

But he's trying to change that and fine-tune his skills.

Aside from being a novelist, Matthew is in many ways a "normal" kid. He lives in West Sacramento's north area with his family. His father, David, is a political consultant. Also in the family are mother Suzanne and sister Reagan.

Matthew attends Holy Spirit Parish School in Land Park — and just started seventh grade.

"I golf a lot. I'm on my school's golf team, and sometimes I play basketball.

I guess you could say I'm 'moderately' popular — when I wrote my book, it didn't matter what my friends thought, but my friends are supportive and give me a lot of encouragement."

One of those friends gave him the idea for one of Matthew's stories.

"His name is Nicolaus, but he likes to be called Mateo," recalls Matthew. "He said, 'I had this weird dream last night about all these clones trapped in a facility. They finally escaped, and there was treason and stuff.' I played with that, and thought it could be the plot of a book."

Online sales of the books are led by purchases from family and friends — "a lot of Dad's friends," said Matthew.

But selling books isn't the goal. As he says on his website, at www.readecompanies.com:

"My talent seems to be writing, so I write."

Coyote killed: link to missing cats?

Remains of cat found in coyote's stomach

A trapper killed a coyote in West Sacramento early Thursday morning — and local officials believe the animal may have been responsible for killing several pet cats in recent months.

"The majority of the dead cats were found in the area between Jefferson Boulevard and 19th Street, east of Fallbrook," said Yolo County Information Officer Michelle Wallace in a press release. "One cat was found south of the (barge canal), west of Arlington."

A necropsy was performed on the coyote, and a UC Davis veterinarian found cat remains in the animal.

The News-Ledger received reports from several residents that a coyote was suspected of killing cats recently — but law enforcement personnel said earlier there was "no evidence" that a coyote was involved.

Thursday's killing of the animal came after authorities evidently changed their minds. The trapper was working with the Yolo County Sheriff's Department and the West Sacramento Police Department.

Wallace said the county trapper will monitor the area for other coyotes who might be killing cats. In the meantime, she reminds residents that coyotes are nocturnal, and pets should be brought indoors at night for safety.

She added that the County has received reports of other cats still missing, but it's unknown whether any of them have fallen prey to a coyote.

'Clean-Up Week' returns

Get rid of that old furniture, those old mattresses and box springs, cars, and tires (up to nine) during Clean-Up Week September 3-6 at 540 Harbor Boulevard. Hours will be Wednesday-Friday 4-7 p.m. and Saturday 9-3. Bring proof of West Sacramento residency (city utility bill or driver's license).

Scrap metal and appliances won't be accepted at that site, but can be taken to J&M Metal Recycling, 2205 Rice Blvd., from 8-5 Monday through Saturday. While the Clean-Up event no longer accepts wood and 'green' waste, your city utility bill includes a 'Clean Up Week' flyer with a voucher to take one residential load of wood or green waste to the landfill with no disposal charge. For information, call 617-4590 or visit www.westsacreycles.org.

Killer in 'heinous and atrocious' 1986 killing is denied parole

A man convicted in a 1986 West Sacramento murder was denied parole last week at Salinas Valley Prison in Soledad.

The office of Yolo District Attorney Jeff Reisig said that Morales surprised 21-year old Gregory Rodriguez in front of the "600 Club" in the city's Broderick area, shooting him in the head. When Morales fell to the sidewalk, Morales fired five more shots, hitting the victim's head, neck and chest. He was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to 32 years-to-life.

The victim's surviving brothers, Eugene and Valentino Rodriguez, told the parole board they felt Morales should stay in prison. Less than a year before Morales shot their brother Gregory, they lost another brother, Albert, in a killing in the Broderick area, said the D.A. "He was very close to me and always looked out for me," said Eugene Rodriguez about his fallen brother Gregory. "I was the baby brother. I used to always want to tag along with him. . . He was just a good person. My mom's not here right now. She said we've been dealt a life sentence."

Gregory Rodriguez was a law-abiding person who wanted to become a CHP officer, said the D.A.'s office.

The parole panel took 20 minutes to decide against releasing the suspect, saying the crime was "as heinous and atrocious as it was dispassionate and calculated." Noting that the murder was committed while Morales was on parole, the parole commissioner said the convict posed "an unreasonable risk and threat to public safety."

New 100' ladder truck aims to help at new high-rises

The West Sacramento Fire Department has taken delivery of a new Pierce ladder truck with a hundred-foot ladder. The truck is a "beefier" ladder truck than one it is scheduled to replace, and is intended to help fight fires or evacuate the city's new high-rises.

Division Chief Gary Fredericksen said most of the $800,000 cost comes out of a replacement budget for the older truck, "which is nearing the end of its 15-year life." But the new CalSTRS building now under construction on the riverfront kicked in $150,000 through negotiations with the city's redevelopment agency.

"With more people, higher densities, and more stories over there, we needed a truck that could reach up high," said Fredericksen. "The new 100-foot ladder is a heavier ladder, better able to get people out of a building."

The new truck is kept at Station 45 in Southport, which fire department officials feel is the most central location — but as more high-rises come up along the northern riverfront, the truck could be moved to a different station in the future. Or the city may need another ladder truck, said Fredericksen.

Thoughts on the passing of another Labor Day —

Note: Below is one of my favorite columns from the past, written a few Labor Day's ago.

Another Labor Day has just come and gone and it seemed like there was hardly a celebration to be found anywhere. That hasn't always been the case, though, especially in the house where I grew up. But first, a little Labor Day history:

Labor Day is a national holiday that is over a hundred years old now and it grew out of a celebration and parade in New York City honoring the working class way back in the 1880's. States like Oregon, Massachusetts and Colorado were the first to declare it a state holiday, and then in 1894, Congress passed a law which finally recognized Labor Day as an official national holiday, to be celebrated on the first Monday of every September.

Now a little family history:

My father spent 39 years of his life working as an electrician for the Southern Pacific Railroad. He got up every morning at the crack of dawn, shaved, put on his work clothes, ate his breakfast, grabbed the lunch pail my mother had prepared for him the night before, and off to "the shops" he went. He liked to get there a little earlier than the rest of the close-knit gang he worked with so that a fresh pot of coffee would be perking when everyone began arriving for the morning shift. Going home time was at 3:30 in the afternoon and he would usually pull up in front of our house just after I had arrived home from school. He never complained of being tired when his work day was over, but he often looked that way. He would just quietly deposit his empty lunch pail where he always left it and then shuffle off to the bathroom to wash off all the dirt and grease that had been left on his hands from his hard day's work. The routine of his work-week never varied, and missing a day's work was something he only did if he was sick as a dog.

In my father's day, a job was a big deal. He had grown up during the Great Depression and had seen up close and personal how harsh life can be without meaningful work to do. He hadn't finished high school and when he returned from World War II, there were not enough jobs to go around for all the returning soldiers with a good education, much less those without one. So the bloated labor market of the late 1940's was an employer's dream, and a potential nightmare for men like my father. He wanted to start a family and return his life to normal as soon as possible, but to do that, he needed a job. More specifically, he needed a decent paying job. Not a job with a particularly big paycheck — just one that would allow him to pay the mortgage on a little two-bedroom tract house he had his eyes on in West Sacramento, and support the family he was eager to start.

Once my father found that job, he was determined to keep it, and to do that, he soon learned that he needed to be a "union man", and for 39 years, his union stood by him and made it possible for his paycheck to go up a little bit every now and then — at least enough to give him the security and dignity deserved by all hard-working men and women. In time, he would even become an officer of his union, and Labor Day was always more to my father than just a time for picnics, and barbecues, and maybe a little weekend stay at a campground with his family.

The history of the labor movement in this country is a long and complicated story, going all the way back to a time when organizing a union could be a life and death struggle. Today, thankfully there are no longer company-hired, club-waving thugs to break up union activities, but the struggle for decent wages, hours and working conditions still goes on. A recent case-in-point was the corporate insensitivity shown to workers being laid off by Northwest Airlines, who were given a booklet offering "101 Ways to Save Money", which included suggestions like "Don't be shy about pulling something you like out of the trash"; "Ask your doctor for sample prescriptions"; "Take shorter showers"; and "Try to get hand-me-down clothes and toys for your kids from friends and relatives." Although Northwest later apologized and stopped including the booklet in its layoff packets, the incident serves as a good reminder that the struggle for dignity and fair compensation in the workplace is a never-ending one.

I am always amazed at how the politicians in this great country of ours prioritize things. For instance, they have no problem whatsoever throwing away billions of dollars (over $800 billion and still counting the last time I looked) on a war in Iraq that never had anything at all to do with our own national security, yet they have to be dragged kicking and screaming to do such labor-related things as increase the minimum wage, or keep good-paying jobs from going overseas, or enact tough laws to increase employee safety in the workplace, or pay for enough government lawyers and prosecutors to root out the corporate corruption that has led to the loss of so many jobs over the years, or set aside enough money to properly back up hard-earned worker pension funds which seem to be going in the toilet almost daily.

Although many of our politicians would have us believe that al-Qaeda or a nuclear Iran or any number of other external threats should be our country's greatest concern, if my father were still alive, I'm sure he would question putting so many of our eggs in that basket. He would say instead that America is (and always has been) only as strong and secure as its labor force and its work ethic makes it, and that our eye should never be taken off that ball. After all, he was part of a generation that stomped out Hitler, Mussolini and Tojo, and to my knowledge, the only thing he ever feared in his life was losing his job.

SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

Are you ready for some football? It's my favorite time of the year when I get to enjoy watching College and NFL football players' lace up the cleats, strap on their helmets and knock each other silly.

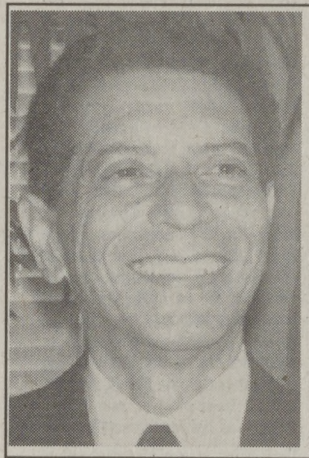

In the NCAA, the Georgia Bulldogs start off No. 1 in the College football polls followed by closely by Ohio State, USC, Oklahoma, Florida, Missouri and LSU. The rest of the pack includes West Virginia, Kansas, Auburn and Clemson but the only Pac 10 teams represented in the top 25 teams are Arizona St. (13) and Oregon (21).

Locally, the Sac State Hornets started off the season with a rare win beating Humboldt State 45-13 but the game of the week was at Cal where the Golden Bears outlasted the Michigan State Spartan 38-31. UCLA also scored an upset beating Tennessee 27-24 in OT but the UCD Aggies didn't fare as well in their season opener losing to San Jose St. 13-10.

Next Saturday the Hornets travel to Colorado State as huge underdogs and the Aggies will play in Central Arkansas.

NFL Week 1

The 2008/09 NFL kicks off the season with a special September 4, Thursday night game featuring the defending champion New York Giants (-3 ½) hosting the Washington Redskins.

This season should produce a couple of surprise teams to enter the playoff mix and set the stage for another interesting season with the Lombardi Trophy awaiting the Conference Champions in Tampa Bay, Florida on February 1, 2009, for Super Bowl XLIII.

All 32 teams will start off the season with Super Bowl aspirations and Playoff dreams but in reality it comes down to the most talented teams win and the best coaching staffs prevail but luck always plays a major roll in success especially in the injury department.

Speaking of luck, I'm bringing back by popular demand "Aztec's Picks?" Yes, my 10-year boxer dog will scratch, claw, gnaw and lick out his weekly NFL and College picks for your enjoyment. Please remember Aztec is a dog and his weekly selections are just for fun which is very difficult especially against the point spread!

This year Aztec's NFC conference winners will be the Cowboys, Vikings, Saints and the 49ers with the Seahawks and Packers as wild cards. The AFC winners will consist of the Chargers, Browns, Jaguars and Patriots with the Steelers and Broncos joining the playoffs as wild card teams.

Aztec's weekly picks will consist of three NFL games and the Monday night game and starting next week his "College Lick of the Week".

In Week 1, Aztec likes the N.Y. Giants (-3 ½) to start off the season with a loud howl and his fur is full of static for the Chargers (-9) at home against Carolina and don't forget the dog loves his 49ers (+3 ½) at home against Arizona. On Monday night the Broncos (-3) will ruin the Raiders home opener on National TV!

the league averaging 3.4 runs per game and have been shut out 11 times and have posted a 9-29 record against N.L. Central teams while posting a 50-49 record against everyone else.

The Oakland A's (63-74) finally wised up and put Frank Thomas on the 15 day DL after he pulled another muscle while batting. The injury really saved the A's from releasing the old veteran who at one point recently was hitless in 23 trips to the plate. It is the second time the 40-year-old power hitter has been on the DL this season.

Thomas, who is tied with Willie McCovey and Ted Williams for 17th place with 521 career home runs, needs one more home run to pass these legends. Thomas, who missed 55 games this season with tendinitis in his right quad from May 28-July 30, will probably be released before the season ends.

This week the Giants will be home against Pittsburgh and Arizona while the A's prepare for a long road trip that will take them to Kansas City, Baltimore and Detroit.

West Sac again part of 'Coastal Cleanup'

Volunteers needed; port & channel cleanup are part of September 20 event

From the City of West Sacramento

The 2008 Coast and Creek Cleanup on Saturday, September 20th marks the 24th year of the California Coastal Cleanup Day program. The Coast and Creek Cleanup Day is a great event to involve families in caring for and protecting their local water bodies. It is also an opportunity for students to earn community services hours by helping to cleanup trash in their local communities.

This year's event in West Sacramento will take place at the River City Rowing Club Boathouse just north of the Port of Sacramento off of Industrial Blvd from 9:00 AM until Noon. You can pre-register to volunteer by September 12, 2008 and attend the cleanup to receive a free metal water bottle (while supplies last!). For more information and directions to the site, please visit www.cityofwestsacramento.org. Pre-register for the event by calling (916) 617-4590 or email to recycle@cityofwestsacramento.org.

The local cleanup event is part of a larger state, national, and international effort. Last year, 61,122 Coastal Cleanup volunteers collected nearly 1 million pounds of trash and recyclables from around the state. A record 48 counties took part in the event. With the majority of trash coming from inland sources, your help in Yolo County is essential to not only a cleaner local waterway but also to a cleaner Delta and Ocean.

All 50 states and over 100 countries took part in the International Cleanup sponsored by the Ocean Conservancy, making this effort the largest marine-related volunteer event in the world. In the state of California, the Coast and Creek Cleanup is sponsored and organized by the California Coastal Commission and Whole Foods Market. In 2008, volunteers will cleanup trash at 750 locations around the state.

Volunteers should wear long pants, sunscreen, close-toed shoes, and hats. Water, gloves, and trash and recycling bags will be provided.

At last year's Coast and Creek Cleanup over 220 volunteers collected 9,850 pounds of trash and recyclables and cleaned-up 16 miles of waterways in Yolo and Solano Counties.

Volunteers helped to rid our local creeks of plastic bags, old newspapers, aluminum cans, and countless other items that have been thoughtlessly thrown along the waterway's banks.

The News-Ledger brings you the 'Police Log' & other news you can't find elsewhere!

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NOTES

The Sacramento river registered three feet, one inch, United States gauge, at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Last Thursday Mrs. J. N. Bennetts and Mrs. Fred L. White, Jr., returned from Wheatland after spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Jasper.

Yesterday afternoon Bill Campbell was taken seriously ill at the Hoffman House and for a time his friends believed that he was in danger. After resting a while Bill recovered sufficiently to go to Sacramento for medical treatment. Later he has been devoting many hours every day to his work, neglecting his meals and neglecting to take the necessary preventives to sickness, with the result above shown.

Last Wednesday, before Judge Barry, Mae Dunlap was discharged after having been accused by Jack Nelson of assault with a deadly weapon. Nelson claimed that the Dunlap woman had stabbed him with a pocket knife over the kidneys, but under cross-examination could not swear that the instrument was a saber, a cleaver or a dirk. E. E. Gaddie, acting for District Attorney McDonald, prosecuted the case.

Mrs. George Beale and children came home from Santa Cruz last night after spending nearly a month at the sea shore.

Friends of Charlie McKay returning from Santa Cruz report that he is thoroughly domesticated already, although he has been married but a few days. It is even reported that he likes house work so well he dries the dishes after every meal. McKay was always known for his gallantry and now that he is enjoying the fruits of married life begins to appreciate what he lost during many years of bachelorhood.

A. Caffero spent last Saturday and Sunday at the home of his parents. He is engaged at Pittsburg, Contra Costa County, and returned there last Monday evening.

Sheriff J. W. Monroe was a visitor here yesterday, building up his defenses and strengthening his trenches of attack. Sheriff Monroe has been spending a good deal of time in this district getting acquainted with the many new residents who have moved here during the past few years. His popularity seems to be gaining although there are some who have been casting sly glances at the other candidates for the office of sheriff of Yolo County.

Doris Norton, accompanied by her mother, brothers and sister, came home from Santa Cruz last Monday after spending a vacation at the sea shore of about a month.

NEAR TRAGEDY IN SNIDER HOME FIRE YESTERDAY MORNING

Were it not for the presence of mind of Mrs. Tom Snider yesterday morning, in getting her husband out of their home after fire had started, a tragedy would surely have occurred because of the helplessness of Mr. Snider.

Losing no time when it became evident she could not extinguish the flames herself, she called for help and neighbors and friends carried Tom Snider from the blazing premises.

The Snider home was nearly consumed after the helpless man was removed.

As Mrs. Snider tells of the occurrence it appears that in some inexplicable manner a fire started in a clothes closet in the front bedroom of the dwelling. Noticing the smoke, Mrs. Snider tried to extinguish the blaze, but failing in her attempt, she recognized that the most important duty she had to perform was to get her helpless husband out of the house. Children playing in the vicinity heard her cries and notified the neighbors.

It was then that Snider was removed while the flames crackled all around the helpless man and the heat became intense.

Outside the building Snider was secure from the flames but the home was nearly consumed. Fortunately, many members of the volunteer fire department of the town were around their homes owing to the railroad strike, and they responded immediately after the fire bell rang from the tower of the town hall.

Immediately following the arrival of the volunteer department two good streams of water and a chemical engine played on the burning building, saving two of the rear rooms from destruction. The front portion of the house was practically ruined and will have to be rebuilt. Insurance was carried on the building and piano but there was no insurance on the contents except that on the piano.

A good deal of the valuables lost in the structure are a total loss and great piles of clothing were ruined.

Mrs. Snider had her face and hair and hands singed, but not seriously, in her effort to extinguish the flames after they started in the closet.

The Snider home is located at Fourth and Harriett Streets. It has been occupied by them during the past twenty-two years but was remodeled about thirteen years ago.

The original building was one of the landmarks in this section of Yolo County having been brought from the East in a sailing ship around the Horn in the early fifties. Tom Snider was supervisor in this district of Yolo County for several years. A few years ago he was seriously injured in a grading camp in Arizona when he sustained a fractured hip that has gradually become a means of crippling him. Several months ago he was stricken with paralysis and for some weeks past has been entirely helpless, even being forced to remain in his bed almost night and day.

Following the fire of yesterday he was removed to a Sacramento hospital so as to have constant medical attention until his home is rebuilt.

now gone to San Francisco for a short stay. Mrs. Marsh is a sister of Wilcox.

WOODLAND MAN SAVED FROM DEATH IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Woodland, Aug. 1.—Luke Spurgeon of this city had a close call from drowning in an irrigation ditch on the State highway just this side of Washington yesterday morning when he was stricken ill while driving his car to Sacramento. Due to a stroke, believed to be partial paralysis, he was rendered practically unconscious and was unable to manipulate his car. The machine veered from the side of the highway, went off the grade, throwing Spurgeon into an irrigation ditch. A passerby happened to notice his predicament and according to report just saved his life by pulling him out. He was removed to this city and is being cared for.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is investing $200,000,000 in West Virginia and Kentucky coal mines.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.

But where do they get all the money?

CONSTRUCTION OF ELKHORN ROAD PROGRESSING

Contractors are busily engaged in construction of the River Road north from the Sacramento By-pass to Elkhorn.

Many great trucks are hauling material to a location on the road near Beatrice station and already about 2000 feet of the road has been completed.

Shortage of material for road construction has been delaying the work during the past few days but the contractors promise that the entire stretch of roadway will be completed by the end of August of the middle of September.

The road between the Church in West Sacramento and River View has been surveyed and bids are about to be asked for its construction. One delay is being experienced by the supervisors on this stretch of roadway. When the survey was made it was found that the roadway was not the required width and hence extra rights of way were needed for that width.

All property owners of the district bordering on the road have willingly donated the necessary ten feet to make the road the regulation width and only one resident of San Francisco who owns some property in the district refuses to donate the ten feet necessary.

The supervisors are now negotiating with him so that it is believed the necessary land can be secured in a few days. When this is accomplished bids for the construction of the road will be advertised and Supervisor Leinberger believes that the work will be completed before the early fall rains.

Alcohol & the young: the dangers abound

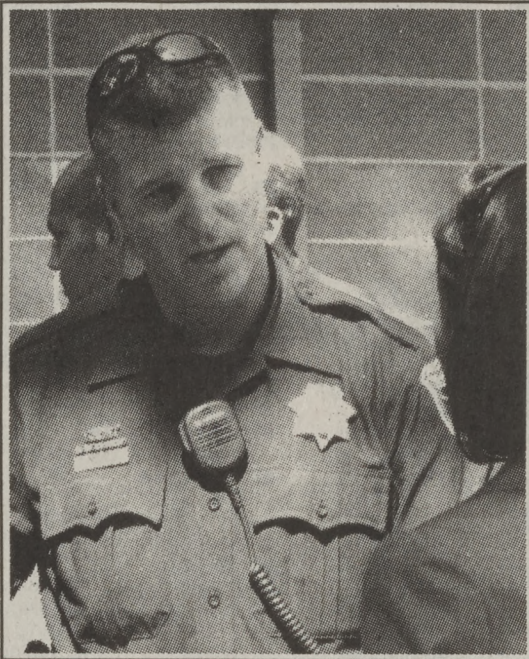

From Michelle Wallace
Yolo County Sheriff's Department

Last Wednesday, the Yolo County Sheriff's Department participated in the "A Minor Drinking ... A Major Problem" press conference with regional law enforcement, medical professionals, the Office of Traffic Safety, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), Recording Artists Against Drunk Driving (RADD), and other government agencies as part of a new Sacramento Regional Youth and Alcohol Coalition. The agencies, working in a coordinated effort, issued the message that persons under twenty-one years of age should not be drinking alcohol.

The Coalition's mission is to save lives by education and enforcing laws. Educating the teenagers and their families is essential in helping them make an informed decision not to drink. Enforcement of the laws is necessary to protect the community and to reduce the number of victims from alcohol use.

If a minor drinks, severe consequences can happen. That minor can die or kill someone else. In addition, youths are more likely to experience school, social, legal, and physical problems. The risks for youths are increased for those who 'binge' drink.

Statistics provided by a medical professional at the press conference, held Wednesday, indicate that there are an increasing number of teens drinking alcoholic beverages. The statistics also indicate that teen blood alcohol content is increasing over previous records.

Yolo County Deputy Eric Groh speaks to

Additionally, teens are beginning to drink at an earlier age.

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) reports that people aged 12-20 years consume 11% of the alcohol used today in the United States. More than 90% of this alcohol is consumed in the form of binge drinking. A national survey, as reported by the CDC, indicates that in 2007 thirty-nine percent of 8th graders and seventy-two percent of 12th graders had tried alcohol.

MADD reports that in 2007 the U.S. Surgeon

General estimated that about 5,000 persons under age 21 die from alcohol-related injuries involving underage drinking each year.

Sheriff E. G. Prieto stated, "The Yolo County

Sheriff's Department is proud to be a part of The Sacramento Regional Youth and Alcohol Coalition. My department is dedicated to reducing alcohol use by minors through education and enforcement."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gated community was the 'elephant in the room'

There was a meeting of the Bryte and Broderick Community Action Group on August 19th to officially begin organizing ourselves into a form which will allow us to apply for, and receive, grants from various sources, and interface with whomever it is we must in order to implement what we have all, in one form or another, been striving for all these years. A community that is uniquely still Bryte and Broderick, yet newly revitalized with the active integration of The Rivers and Southport into our "hood's" proposed rehabilitation in not only our eyes, but the eyes of our neighbors, friends and the greater community at large as well.

We elected officers, set up committees, brought up various organizational concerns, and, most importantly, had a very frank, healthy and useful clearing of the air, regarding just who is, and who is not a member of that, at times nebulous, concept of just what being a resident of our community means. Does it in-or-exclude those who do not live, but work here? How about those who share a zip code, but wall themselves off from the rest of the neighborhood? I was the curmudgeon who was indelicate enough to bring the whole mess up, as everyone seemed to be ignoring the elephant in the room.

I believe we reached some surprising, but welcome conclusions, forged some welcome, but surprising alliances with people who were willing to reach out to us more insular types, and, all in all, I think we came away from the experience with a sense of purpose and accomplishment. Something this community truly needs and deserves.

	+		-		4
	÷		x		12

"Tropic Thunder"

Running time: 106 minutes
MPAA rating: R

Let's get this over with right off the bat: "Tropic Thunder" is the sickest, funniest flick of the summer.

The film, co-written and directed by Ben Stiller, who also stars as Tugg Speedman, is a raunchy, biting satire on Hollywood egos and filmmaking. It's also Stiller's best work this decade.

"Tropic Thunder" is about a big-budget "Apocalypse Now"-type Vietnam War movie that has gone way off schedule and over budget. To save the production, the director (Steve Coogan) decides to "go guerrilla" and send his cast out into the jungle and film them a la "The Blair Witch Project."

Of course, the clueless actors wander off and encounter real-life, deadly drug runners. And ... well, it's like everything you liked about "Three Amigos" and more.

The guys are filled with bravado at first, but once they realize they're no longer on a movie and the danger is very real and life threatening, they crumble.

But, like "Three Amigos," they pull themselves together at the end because they're actors, damn it, and they can act their way out of anything. What truly makes "Tropic Thunder" a comic tour de force is the strong script and the outstanding performances by the cast.

The strongest and funniest performances come from Robert Downey Jr. and Tom Cruise. Yes, Tom Cruise.

Downey plays Kirk Lazarus, an Australian actor (modeled on Russell Crowe) who has undergone pigmentation-augmentation surgery in order to play the African-American lead. Lazarus is so into his role, so consumed by method acting, that he never breaks character — even when he breaks character. Yeah. Wrap your brain around that one.

Cruise is also surprisingly hilarious as studio head Les Grossman, a balding, fat, ham-handed vulgarian who takes no prisoners and has no morals.

Like most comedies, it's all a matter of taste — and "Tropic Thunder" may not be to everyone's liking. The humor is sometimes sick and over-the-top; some of the humor may be too Hollywood Insider; and the subject matter in a few scenes (the "Never Go Full Retard" bit is a prime example) may be off-putting to the overly sensitive.

Thankfully, I'm not in any of those categories. I adored this movie and can't wait for the loaded DVD release.

Snow Pea, Radish and Celery Sauté

Serve this light, lemony vegetable sauté with roast chicken or a light fish dish.

- 2 large green onions
- 2 large celery stalks
- 1 bunch radishes
- 1/2 pound Chinese pea pods (snow peas)
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 large lemon

1. Cut green onions into 1-inch pieces. Slice celery diagonally into thin slices. Cut each radish in half. Remove stem and strings along both edges of each pea pod.

2. In nonstick 10-inch skillet over medium-high heat, in hot salad oil, cook green onions, celery, radishes, pea pods and salt until vegetables are lightly browned and tender-crisp.

3. Cut lemon in half. Squeeze juice from half of lemon over vegetables. Spoon vegetables onto platter. Slice remaining lemon into thin slices. Garnish vegetables with lemon slices.

Flounder Pesto Roll-ups

Fresh fish fillets are spread with store-bought pesto and baked with white wine and plum tomatoes for a simply satisfying meal.

- 4 (about 6 ounces each) flounder fillets
- 8 teaspoons refrigerated basil pesto
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup dry white wine
- 4 plum tomatoes, chopped
- 1/4 cup loosely packed fresh parsley leaves, chopped

1. Preheat oven to 400 F. Place fillets, skinned side down, on work surface. Spread 2 teaspoons pesto on each fillet; sprinkle with salt. Starting at narrow end of each fillet, roll up jelly-roll fashion. Place roll-ups, seam side down, in an 8- by 8-inch glass baking dish.

2. Pour wine over fillets and top with tomatoes. Cover dish and bake 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Sprinkle with parsley to serve. Serves 4.

Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS

by Steven Austin

Walter T. Shaw

Walter T. Shaw is considered the world's most notorious "former" jewel thief. His long-awaited memoir, "A License To Steal" (Omega Publishing), was just released and is available everywhere. The book chronicles the saga of his father, probably one of the most important inventors of our time, who was ripped off by corporate America and the Mafia, and how this drove Walter himself to become one of the country's most famous jewel thieves, having taken an estimated $70 million from the rich and famous from Long Island to Florida. He spent more than 11 years in prison for his offenses, and due to threats against his life, actually spent time in a cell next to serial killer Ted Bundy. Shaw is now a popular guest on TV shows around the world discussing burglary and crime prevention. Look for an upcoming major motion picture based on the book. For more info: www.alicence2steal.com.

The Hollywood image of thieves often shows them planning a big job over a meal. Did you ever do that?

"Sure, many a score was planned out over an impressive Italian dinner. For example, while having a dinner in Carmel, Calif., our crew enjoyed plates full of spaghetti and fettuccini alfredo while jobs specs were being laid out on the table."

We guess you don't recommend prison food to anyone.

"Besides missing your family, missing great meals is true punishment. How can you enjoy a steady dose of black-eyed peas, hot dogs and mullet? While in prison I craved simple but abundant Italian and steak dinners. The kind of dinners that you would get together with family on Sunday afternoons and then take a long nap after."

Of all the tough guys you knew, who was the biggest tipper? Who took food the most seriously?

"The biggest tipplers were Tony Plate and Aniello 'Neil' Dellacroce, because when they rolled the wad of bills out, their server was the lucky one. Johnny Boy 'Gotti' took his meals seriously ... the kinda guy that would order in great detail."

Tell us about a 'Dinner Time Burglar' theft you took part in.

"I can't go into specifics about these alleged 'Dinner Time' burglaries, but the FBI blamed my crew for a staggering 3,000 jobs worth more than $70 million since the early 1970s. Our so-called Dinner Time Burglar jewel thief ring was said to have robbed when people were home, and we were even accused of robbing the mansions of Liberace and the DuPonts and Firestone families. But let's just say for fun that if I was part of a 'Dinner Time' score, I could say with confidence that the Vanderbilts enjoy cognac with their dinner."

Someone is visiting New York City for the first time. Where would you take him out for breakfast, lunch and dinner, and why?

"For a breakfast fit for a sit-down, my favorite spot is the Brooklyn Diner on West 57th. In fact, the last time I was there I met Jerry Seinfeld and signed a copy of my book 'A License To Steal' for him. For lunch, Tavern on the Green is picturesque and has a terrific menu. ... I should know, because I took one home. I have two classic dinner joints. The first is Fresco By Scottos, where they treat you like family and the staff is amazing. And if you want a good steak, you can't beat Sparks steakhouse. My most memorable meal ever was actually in Ft. Lauderdale, at a place called Coco Pazzo's. It was one of the last meals with my father, and we enjoyed some wonderful linguini and clam sauce."

CHICKEN SCAPRIELLO

- 6 medium red Russett potatoes
- Olive oil
- 2 garlic cloves, peeled
- 1 1/2 pounds fresh boneless chicken breasts cut into bite-sized pieces
- 1 pound sweet or hot Italian sausage cut into bite-sized pieces
- 1 cup black olives (whole with pits)
- 1 cup pepperoncini peppers, sliced
- Salt, pepper, oregano to taste
- 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar

Boil potatoes until done. Cool then cut into cubes. Set aside. Place olive oil in a very large fry pan and saute garlic cloves. Add chicken and sausage, and cook until thoroughly done. Add olives and peppers, salt, pepper, oregano. Reduce heat to moderate. Add balsamic vinegar, starting slowly, until you see the contents in the pan turning to a slightly browner shade. Add potatoes and stir mixture gently so potatoes absorb flavor. Simmer at low for 5-10 minutes until potatoes begin to turn slightly golden. Remove from heat and serve. A nice green salad or tomatoes with mozzarella make a nice addition to this hearty dish. Serves 4-6.

Heaven and Hell: My Life in the Eagles (1974-2001)
by Don Felder, with Wendy Holden
(Wiley, $25.95)

Reviewed by Chris Richcreek

Capturing the country-rock band the Eagles in written form has always been difficult, as the band members have been mostly closetmouthed.

The mouth that finally opened was guitarist Don Felder's. Yet a cynic would note that Felder was fired by the band in 2001. Could this book be a hatchet job?

Felder's "Heaven and Hell" certainly is a very interesting look at a legendary group. Growing up in Gainesville, Fla., Felder crossed paths with future music legends Duane Allman, Bernie Leadon, Tom Petty and Stephen Stills. Leadon would become one of the founding members of the Eagles, and Felder would eventually join the band and write the music that became the hit single "Hotel California."

The book details how the Eagles were heavily into drug use, sexual debauchery and creative tension. But it focuses on "The Gods," the nickname for chief singers/songwriters Glenn Frey and Don Henley, who, Felder says, became greedier as time went on. According to him, the band evolved from Frey saying, "There are no sidemen in this band" to his saying: "This band's like a football team. Some players are more noteworthy and more famous, and they can command bigger salaries."

Felder describes his own problems, including how his time in the Eagles helped end his 29-year marriage. His firing came after he questioned the financial arrangements for band members. (A lawsuit by Felder against the Eagles was settled out of court.) Felder sums up his time with the Eagles by saying, "We'd laughed and loved and lived and cried to the same songs as our audience, but the bottom line is, we never really got along."

Felder's motivations for the book can be debated, but when it comes to the music, many Eagles aficionados say that the band minus Felder doesn't sound quite as good. After "Heaven and Hell," its remaining members might not look so good, either.

Unbelievable. Unforgettable. Affordable.

Books Worth Reading*Smart Women Don't Retire

(NAPS)—Women who were trailblazers throughout their careers are now helping to redefine what it means to retire.

Instead of heading for the rocking chair, these energetic, vital women are breaking free and rethinking how to spend the rest of their lives. For them, retirement means exploring new, exciting options and finally having the freedom to be themselves.

"We can build a new career or start up a business. We can pursue our passions and even help change the world," says Gail Rentsch, author of "Smart Women Don't Retire—They Break Free" and a founding member of The Transition Network.

The Transition Network consists of working women throughout the country who are facing retirement with trepidation and wondering how they will survive without the structure, stimulation, sense of achievement, and relationships they had throughout their careers. Aware that they need new skills to cope, they are seeking support and guidance from women who share similar concerns and experiences.

The book Rentsch wrote shows how others are reinventing what it means to be "retired." Written for women at or near retirement, it offers solid advice for creating exciting work and volunteer opportunities and discovering new outlets for expressing passion and creativity.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENT NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY OF DRAFT EIR

The City of West Sacramento, in coordination with the City of Sacramento, Sacramento Regional Transit and Yolo County Transportation District, has prepared a Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) for the Downtown-Riverfront Streetcar project.

If approved, the Proposed Project would initiate streetcar service, using modern streetcars, in the public right-of-way connecting the West Sacramento Civic Center and Raley Field with Downtown Sacramento. Streetcar service would operate 7 days a week from 6:00 a.m. to midnight. Service is planned to be offered at 10-minute intervals during peak periods and 15-minute intervals during off-peak hours. The project would install new track and stations in the existing street right of way on West Capitol, Tower Bridge Gateway, Tower Bridge, and Capitol Mall and then share existing track and stations with RT light rail along 7th/8th and K Streets, terminating in a one-way loop (via 13th, J, 15th, L, and 13th Streets including two new stations) around the Sacramento Convention Center. The project would serve as an urban circulator, connecting workers, visitors and recreation-goers with key development planned in West Sacramento and Downtown Sacramento.

The Draft EIR identifies potential impacts on the environment produced by the Proposed Project and No Project Alternatives and contains mitigation measures, which if implemented, would reduce the potential impacts to less than significant.

Copies of the Draft EIR are on file in the office of the West Sacramento Public Works & Community Development Department at 1110 West Capitol Avenue, 2nd Floor, West Sacramento, CA 95691 (telephone: 916/617-4645).
